

"Isiah"

In those eyes I see a sparkle so clear like a look into a mirror. Those lips tell many stories of laughter and pain. Those ears listen so sweet to anything you hear. Those legs walk to show the way of your future generations. Those arms hold tightly and show much strength and that heart beats so loudly like a drum and shows so much love to all around you. That smile and laughter brings much sunshine to all lives and though you may physically be gone, all these things will be in remembrance of all the many good times and days that were spent with you. So, we will never forget you — not your face, grace, or anything about you, not even your stubborn ways. You had something that will never be replaced, a forever type of thing. Even though it is time to say goodbye, in my eyes that is not a thing because you are with me in every way.

OBITUARY

Isiah Brad Brown Sr., was affectionately known as "NuNu or Ike" to his immediate family. He was born in Toledo, Ohio on September 27, 1989 to the union of Joseph and Patricia Brown. Isiah was one of the good ones that went home peacefully to be with the Lord on December 13, 2020.

Isiah was preceded in death by his paternal grandparents Geraldine Jackson and Edgar Bradshaw, and maternal grandparents Vivian and Clyde Smith Sr. Isiah is survived by his beautiful wife Yvette Brown; children: Harmony, Iyanna and Isiah Jr.; his loving parents Patricia and Joseph Brown; siblings: Joseph Jr., Quincy, LaKinia, Chanelle, Olajuwon, and Julius Brown.

II Timothy 4:7 says, "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith." Most people go through life, and let the world change and impact who they become. But not Isiah, he was consistent. He did not let his difficulty make him bitter or change his outlook on life. He remained carefree and joyful in his adult life just as he was as a child. As a kid, he was always up for whatever his older siblings were doing. He loved his bedtime singing competitions with his brothers, but "Silent Night" seemed to be there favorite song. It is no secret that Isiah loved Michael Jackson and it didn't matter what kind of mood he was in, if any of his songs were playing, Isiah couldn't stop the music from taking over his body. Not many of knew, but Isiah was also an accomplished musician. He was known for his comedic rap style in the group, The Fat Boyz that he formed with his brothers Julius and Olajuwon. While they never sold an album, they were famous in their parent's living room. He liked to spend his free time playing basketball and loved watching his favorite teams: Kentucky basketball and Ohio State football play. However his all-time favorite was playing the video games especially Mario Kart 64. He was not shy in letting people know that he would frequently beat down his brothers, Julius and Olajuwon, especially if there was a box of Little Debbie's on the line.

Isiah was funny and anyone who was lucky enough to spend time with him quickly figured that out. He was also very social and he loved to be surrounded by his family and friends. On any given day, you could find him with his older brothers Joe, Quincy, and Julius and he was so lucky to call his brother, Julius, his best friend. He was kind and thoughtful of others. He showed this in the way he was generous with his time, and in the way he was quick to open his home to anyone in need, and in the way he always showed up for his sister, Chanelle. He would regularly babysit his nieces and somehow always got them to make him food. So, there was always the question of who was babysitting who.

Before he departed this life, Isiah started up a lawn service company that was doing quite well. His brother-in-law, Darius, was helping him to grow that business and during that time resulted in them developing a close friendship. He was loyal and cared deeply for his family. Isiah's proudest accomplishment was being a husband and father. He adored his family and he was completely committed to spending time and making them happy. He found the love of his life when he met Yvette and their love for one another shines through their children. He was good to his wife and kids; he was a good man to his family and friends.
